

Flier Denies Admission in Clarke Death

Says He Didn't Tell Dead Man's Mother He May Have Killed Son

SUICIDE, HE INSISTS

Defense Counsel Says He Has Only One More Witness in Case

BULLETIN

Miami, Fla. —P— The defense rested at 3 o'clock p. m. today in the trial of Captain W. N. Lancaster, British aviator, charged with the murder of Haden Clarke, young writer, his rival for the love of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix.

Miami, Fla. —P— A denial he told the mother of Haden Clarke, for whose slaying he is on trial, he was so confused on the night of the shooting that he sometimes thought he killed her son was shouted from the witness stand today by Captain W. N. Lancaster, British aviator.

"Did you at any time after the shooting tell Mrs. Clarke you thought sometimes that you killed Haden?" State's Attorney N. J. Verdon Hawthorne asked Lancaster.

"I did not, I never told her any such thing," Lancaster shouted.

The flier was called for further cross examination on the eleventh day of his trial.

Lancaster is charged with slaying Clarke April 21 as jealous retribution because Clarke, a young author who was writing Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller's life history, had succeeded him in the affections of the Australian aviatrix.

Lancaster testified Clarke took his own life in an honor suicide after deciding that a recurring illness would prevent his marriage to Mrs. Keith-Miller.

Spectators laughed heartily at a oral sparring match between Hawthorne and Albert H. Hamilton, criminologist who has testified for the defense that Clarke was a suicide and not killed.

Verbal Battle

"Your purpose in testifying in this trial is to bring out the truth and enhance your own reputation, is it not?" Hawthorne asked.

"My purpose is to bring out the truth."

"Are you not interested in giving newspaper interviews on your capabilities as a crime expert?"

"No."

"Did you not give a series of interviews to newspapermen as soon as you got here?"

"Oh, yes, I always do that. I like to help them earn their salaries."

Defense Counsel James M. Carson announced after physicians had testified as to the condition of the body that he had only one more witness to call before he closed his case but that the witness, whom he did not name, could not be present at once.

Hawthorne placed Lancaster back on the stand for further cross examination. The flier told of showing the forged suicide notes to Mrs. Clarke a few hours after the shooting.

"Did she identify the signature of the notes?" Hawthorne asked.

"No, they were read to her. She did not have her glasses with her."

Divorced Friday, She Weds Today

Harrison, N. Y. —P— Ruth Chastillon, actress who was divorced yesterday from Ralph Forbes, was married here shortly after noon today to George Brent, movie actor.

The couple motored here from New York, for the ceremony which took place in the office of William A. Wilding, town clerk. Justice of the Peace Winifred C. Allen of Harrison, officiated.

Frances Starr, actress, and Virginia Hammond were witnesses. The bride was dressed in a light silk frock and small hat. She wore no flowers.

"Did you at any time after the shooting tell Mrs. Clarke you thought sometimes that you killed Haden?" State's Attorney N. J. Verdon Hawthorne asked Lancaster.

"I did not, I never told her any such thing," Lancaster shouted.

Hoover Starts New Drive to Help Business

Plans Conferences With Business and Industrial Leaders of U. S.

OUTLINES PROGRAM

Prepares to Name Jobs Chief to Replace W. S. Gifford, Resigned

Washington —P— Dropping for the time being the political activities which have engrossed him for several days, President Hoover today directed his activities toward governmental affairs and the economic conference he is planning in an effort to stimulate business.

Several cabinet officers were called in one after another by the chief executive for discussions centering about these two topics. Those who called at the White House for discussion of political topics were referred to Mr. Hoover's secretaries.

Roy D. Chapin, the new secretary of commerce, said he had discussed plans for the general business conference with Mr. Hoover, but said the White House itself would have to be the only source of information concerning it.

"All I can say," Chapin added, "is that the president has a very definite and a very fine plan, speaking as a business man, and I think the business men of the country are going to like it."

Chapin said he assured Mr. Hoover he found the commerce department in excellent condition, with "the personnel about as efficient as one could imagine." The personnel of the department, he said already have been told that changes will not be made.

During the morning, the president also talked with Secretary Stimson, Mills and Hyde, most of them reporting afterward that only routine governmental affairs had been discussed.

Washington —P— President Hoover is applying to a new drive for better business one of his oldest and favorite ideas—that if asking help directly from the men he thinks can give it.

He will present to business and industrial leaders in a conference shortly his plans for "united and concerted action on a broad front throughout the country." The date of the meeting he expects to announce Monday.

At that gathering, Mr. Hoover will expound his nine-point economic program to men of importance from each of the twelve federal reserve districts. That was the plan he had in mind when he said in his acceptance speech:

"I am today organizing the private industrial and financial resources of the country to cooperate effectively with the vast governmental instrumentalities which we have in mind."

His work in that direction, he told newspapermen, has progressed far enough for the businessmen to be called into consultation. With them he will discuss means of speeding self-liquidating construction by loans from the reconstruction corporation, stimulation of a move to clear slum districts, distribution of livestock and feeder loans to farmers, spreading existing employment through shorter working hours, establishment of the home loan banking system, stimulating railway construction and repair work, helping in the disposition of agricultural commodities, and other things.

New Relief Head

And before long, too, he expects to select a new director for another of his relief machines—the organization of unemployment. Walter S. Gifford's resignation was accepted yesterday by the president. The director said he felt he could not continue the work for another winter.

The coming White House meeting will see scenes reminiscent of Mr. Hoover's early and later days in office. Where he got the idea he has not said, but he has used it many times. In November of 1929, for instance, he held separate meetings with farm, utility, railroad and other business leaders. They told him how they expected to help in the future.

A group of industrialists with whom he met in that month promised to invite more for wage reductions. It was that promise to which the president referred in his acceptance speech.

Since then he has met at various times with real estate, stock exchange, bank and other leaders. The stock exchange meeting brought a denunciation of short sellers; the discussion with bankers was followed by establishment of a huge credit pool.

The president is known to feel that appeals to individual leaders of various groups are more productive than blanket requests for cooperation. He thinks these leaders have influence in already established organizations that could be helpful.

12 Persons Injured in Tenement House Fire

New York —P— A fire believed to have been of incendiary origin destroyed a 4-story tenement building on Bushwick-ave in Brooklyn today. Twelve persons were burned and overcome by smoke. One is expected to die. Firemen carried the bodies of the building to safety by means of ladders. Inhabitant squads rescued those who had been overcome by smoke.

Truck Driver Saves Boy From Being Hit By Speeding Train

Kenosha —P— Virgil Holstein, a Milwaukee truck driver, is credited by police with saving the life of 2-year-old Raymond Mitchell.

The child pedaled his tricycle under the gates of the Roosevelt road crossing into the path of a speeding North Shore line train yesterday.

Holstein, waiting for the train to pass, jumped from his truck, ducked under the gates and tossed the boy out of danger. The train swept by as Holstein fell back to avoid being struck.

The child's tricycle was carried 200 feet along the track and smashed.

Final Action in Walker Case May Depend on Courts

Exact Plans of Mayor's Attorneys for Appeal Still Remain in Doubt

Hyde Park, N. Y. —P— The Walker hearing temporarily forgotten, Governor Roosevelt was at home today, preparing to receive John N. Garner tomorrow and to invite him up to Albany tomorrow night.

The governor arrived at his estate last night, having left at the capitol in Albany last consideration of the case of Mayor James J. Walker. He motored down, and today spent a quiet day, lunching with Henry Wallace, Des Moines, Iowa, publisher. Wallace heads a group of farm publications.

Albany, N. Y. —P— The courts, and not Governor Roosevelt will have the last word in the Walker case.

That the defense intends to turn to the courts if the governor's decision is against Mayor Walker has been indicated by the legal exceptions taken to two of Mr. Roosevelt's rulings at the hearing in the executive chamber on the charges against the mayor.

The defense has challenged the governor's right to scrutinize the mayor's first term and also his admission of Hofstadter committee findings as evidence. John J. Curtin, Walker's attorney, took exceptions yesterday on both these grounds.

There was no hint as to how such an appeal would be taken.

Legal steps to restrain the governor from entertaining the Seabury charges against the mayor already have been taken on the ground that the governor has no authority to sit in judgment. It is based on the fact that the state constitution does not say specifically that the governor shall have the power to remove the mayor of a city. The constitution says merely that cities shall have the power to adopt local laws relating, among other things, to the "mode of selection and removal" of their officials.

However, a special provision of the New York city charter, believed based on this part of the constitution, says:

Hutton Given Month to Appeal Heart Balm Suit

Los Angeles —P— Within the next month David L. Hutton, husband of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, is expected to decide if he will appeal the breach of promise suit in which a jury awarded $5,000 to Myrtle Joan St. Pierre.

Superior Judge Lester W. Roth yesterday denied Hutton a new trial and granted a stay of execution of the $5,000 judgment for a new hearing based on alleged trial irregularities. The pretty, brunet Pasadena nurse sought damages of $200,000.

Miners Remain Idle in Illinois Coal District

Springfield, Ill. —P— No coal was hoisted today in mines of the Springfield sub-district.

Pickets still surround the mines and dissuaded those who sought to return to work.

The Woodside mine of the Peabody Coal company, south of the city, had planned to begin to start this morning, but miners failed to appear. About 60 men were reported employed, however, in the clean-up work.

Justice Loses $10,000 a Year by Technicalities

Washington, D. C. —P— After spending a lifetime interpreting and applying the laws, that master of them Oliver Wendell Holmes finds legal technicalities will cost him $10,000 this fiscal year.

Justice Holmes is the last of a group of federal judges affected by the economy measure which reduces the pay of government employees. He resigned only a few weeks ago on the eve of his ninety-first birthday after almost 30 years on the supreme court bench. Then he was eligible to draw $10,000 for the remainder of his life, only to have that cut in half by the economy bill.

Raid Shawano Brewery and Arrest 8 Men

Federal Prohibition Agents Seize Building and All Stock

PLANT UNDER PERMIT

President and Employees Face Arraignment Today on Charges

Shawano, Wis. —P— The Farmers' brewery, which has been in operation since the advent of prohibition, was raided and seized last night by Milwaukee prohibition agents, as they followed instructions from W. Frank Cunningham, deputy prohibition administrator.

Conrad Vollant, president, and seven others were arrested. All were lodged in jail overnight and will be arraigned today.

Those arrested with Vollant are William Bohm, Charles Marshall, Benek, Louis Kroenke, Robert Hebeck, and William H. Beck, all brewery employees, and Walter Miller of Green Bay, a truck driver.

The raiding agents said a search of Miller's truck revealed 27 half barrels of "high powered beer." Vollant was arrested while leading a group of men in a parade in the rear of the brewery.

The agents took possession of the building, building and all stock. They estimated there were 338 barrels of beer in vats.

The seizure was the first in several years in Wisconsin involving a permit brewery.

Twenty-five thousand gallons of mash and a quantity of alcohol were destroyed by prohibition raiders who seized a distillery on a farm near West Bend yesterday. Agents said they would seek a warrant for the arrest of Eugene Fellen.

THREE ARRAIGNED

Green Bay —P— Three defendants appeared for arraignment on liquor law violation charges before U. S. Commissioner John F. Watermelon this morning.

Tony Flore, charged with being engaged in operation of a downtown soft drink parlor pleaded not guilty, and furnished $500 bond to appear at a preliminary hearing, Aug. 16.

The other two defendants were brought in as a result of raids conducted by prohibition agents. William McFarland, operator of an inn on Highway 141 a short distance north of Big Smeatic, pleaded guilty to charges of possession and sale of liquor and was bound over to the October term of federal court.

Lawrence Pothie, operator of a soft drink parlor at Marinette, charged with possession and sale, also pleaded guilty and was bound over to the October term.

Gilda Gray Wants Her Father Put Into Home

Seattle, Wash. —P— Gilda Gray, stage dancer, said yesterday she had instructed her attorney to have her father, Max Michalski, committed to an old man's home in Milwaukee, where the news dispatches indicated he had been receiving county aid.

"My father and I have never been able to get along," Miss Gray said. "Now it is time to put a stop to it. I've been supporting my father ever since I was old enough to work. My son is not dependent on charity. What do you think I am working for now? I put him in a military academy and my father took him out. I'm going to send my son to school in Switzerland."

The cancer described the home in which her father would be placed as "where I never lived and where I would pay for his care."

Milwaukee Boy Killed By Falling Cake of Ice

Milwaukee —P— A 10-year-old boy was killed today by a large cake of ice falling from a building.

The boy, named John, was playing in a park when the cake of ice fell from a building and struck him on the head.

The boy was taken to the hospital and died shortly thereafter.

The building from which the cake of ice fell was under construction.

State Asks $6,500,000 Job Relief Loan; City Votes to Ask $750,000

Badger Request to Finance Body to be Made Tuesday

CHECK STATE NEEDS

Allotments to be Made to Communities From State Fund

Madison —P— Wisconsin will submit a request to the Reconstruction Finance corporation at Washington Tuesday for a loan of $6,500,000 from federal unemployment relief funds to carry the state's local communities over until next January.

Senator Thomas M. Duncan, executive secretary of Gov. Philip La Follette, said the request would be based on a survey of the state's needs until that time which has been made by the State Industrial commission in conjunction with the League of Wisconsin Municipalities.

The R. F. C. is administering a fund of $300,000,000 which was provided by the last congress for relief loans to the states.

If the corporation approves Wisconsin's application in detail, the $6,500,000 requested will be distributed to the localities in accordance with their relief needs as revealed by the survey, Senator Duncan said.

If this entire sum is made available, local communities will have received from the Wisconsin government, through income surtaxes and from the federal government through the R. F. C. more than $12,000,000 in direct relief funds for the year 1932.

The state appropriations from the income surtaxes, amounting roughly to $6,000,000 either have been paid or certified in full to the responsible agencies entitled to receive the money.

These relief sums do not include the $3,600,000 in emergency highway funds made available to Wisconsin by the federal government.

The governors office said the application for a federal loan is governed by instructions from Washington that requests be confined to the period ending next Dec. 31.

It was indicated that if conditions at that time demand further assistance for the localities in caring for their unemployed the 1933 legislature may have to launch upon relief legislation as one of its first objectives.

Late Rally After Early Declines

Some Issues Close Higher Than Yesterday. Others Cut Down Losses

New York —P— The stock market recovered in the last hour today, after a further sharp dip in the earlier trading.

Losses of $1 to $5 in many of the leaders, on top of even sharper declines yesterday, were largely regained, and a number of issues closed with advances ranging from a few cents to $1 1/2.

The Trading was moderately active, or somewhat under 2,000,000 shares for the two hour session.

Gains of less than $1 were scored by American Smelting, New Haven, Bethlehem Steel, Anaconda and Standard of New Jersey. Losses of $1 to $2 were registered by General Motors, Baltimore and Ohio, Dupont, American Telephone and Union Pacific U. S. Steel, after reacting $1 1/2 to $2, recovered about half of the loss.

The bond market turned somewhat reactionary for the first time in about 10 days, but in commercial paper offerings and futures closed the day with gains of 1/8 to 1/4 cents a box.

Foreign exchange generally suffered around the dollar, but gold was up 1/2 cent.

After a wedding breakfast at a Schenectady hotel, the bride and groom left for a trip to Montreal and the Maine coast.

Oshkosh Flier Arrives At Montpelier Airport

Montpelier, Vt. —P— Clyde A. Lee of Oshkosh, Wis., who with Julius Robinson of Neagunee, Mich., plans to fly next week from the Montpelier-Barre airport to Norway by way of Newfoundland, arrived last night with the plane "Green Mountain Boy" which will be used for the flight.

Lee said he had engaged Hubert Huntington, widely known navigator, to set the plane's instruments and assist in charting the course.

Hitler Refuses To Take Post as Vice Chancellor

President Refuses to Name Him Chancellor "for Sake of Fatherland"

Berlin —P— Adolf Hitler, fiery chief of the National Socialists, upset the plans of President Von Hindenburg and the present government today by declining an offer of a vice chancellorship in the new cabinet which is to be formed soon.

Hitler announced his decision to Chancellor Franz von Papen at a conference which began at 11:45 a. m. He informed the chancellor that his policy would be one of determined opposition to the present government. He also declined an offer of the ministry of the interior for one of his party lieutenants.

As a result of Hitler's decision his conference with President Paul von Hindenburg was postponed.

Hitler reiterated his demand that on the strength of his party's power in the Reichstag he be made chancellor of Germany.

The president refused "for moral reasons and for the sake of the fatherland."

With great dignity he added that his conscience would not permit him to entrust to one party the sole responsibility for the entire German people.

He entreated Hitler to be content with a cabinet office, but not that of chancellor.

The Nazi chieftain refused. He asserted nothing but the chancellorship would satisfy him and that he would not share responsibility with others.

He straightened his shoulders, clicked his heels, saluted and left.

Several of his party associates who were present at the interview went back to the chancellery to consult on the consequences of Hitler's refusal.

The first reaction of members of the Von Papen cabinet was to follow the course the chancellor indicated in a recent interview—to go before the new Reichstag when it assembles at the end of this month and dare the opposition to turn the government over.

In case of a vote of non-confidence, the next step would be to dissolve the Reichstag and to go on as at present, governing without parliament until things become calmer.

Schenectady, N. Y. —P— Police held back a crowd which filled the Church of the Immaculate Conception to overflowing today for the wedding of Walter, youngest son of Governor Gov. Alfred E. Smith, to Miss Florence Watson of Schenectady.

The former governor's wife and members of their family occupied a front section of the church during the ceremony. His appearance at the wedding was warmly welcomed by the crowd.

After a wedding breakfast at a Schenectady hotel, the bride and groom left for a trip to Montreal and the Maine coast.

Priest Expects to Lead 20,000 Jobless To Party Convention

Pittsburgh —P— The Rev. James R. Cox organized his forces today for the march of 20,000 or more Pennsylvanians to the Jobless-Liberty party convention in St. Louis next week.

In automobiles and trucks, the caravan from this state will leave Pittsburgh tomorrow, halting for overnight stops at Columbus and Indianapolis.

At various points along the route other delegations will join the party. Father Cox, militant pastor of Old St. Patrick church said he expected 100,000 to attend the convention.

Objections of Missouri citizens to the gathering, Father Cox said, had been overcome and no trouble is anticipated.

Dry Law Issue Up in Senate In December

Republicans Expect to Obtain Vote on Question of Repeal

Washington—Spurred by President Hoover's call for prohibition reform, leaders of the senate Republican majority intend to go to work on the eighteenth amendment at the coming December session.

Senator McNary of Oregon, the assistant Republican leader, says the order of business when the senate reconvenes is a vote on taking up prohibition repeal.

The pending motion and proposal is now advanced by Senator Glass (D. Va.) The Virginia Democrat asserted last night that Mr. Hoover's prohibition recommendation "is identical with the proposal offered by me." He facetiously denied writing this section of the president's address.

Republicans now intent on settling the congressional end of the prohibition controversy before the inauguration next March 4 previously have contended that Glass offered their party platform proposal.

President Hoover is expected by some highly-placed Republicans on Capitol Hill to recommend to congress in the coming short session immediate action on his idea for state liquor control, with a constitutional guarantee for protection of dry states from liquor imports and against the saloon in all states.

He himself has made no statement in that regard, however, and merely out in his acceptance speech that "the constitution gives the president no power or authority with respect to changes in the constitution itself."

"The first duty of the president," he emphasized, "is to enforce the laws as they exist. That I shall continue to do to the utmost of my ability."

All Candidates to Have Opportunity To Speak at Meet

All political candidates will be given a chance to give short talks at the next meeting of the Sixth Ward Voters club, to be held Monday, Aug. 22, at Roosevelt school.

While the meeting is sponsored by the Sixth ward club the entire public is invited, as it is felt that the program of the meeting is one of general interest.

Political candidates will talk, Alderman Philipp Vogt will give a complete report on the status of the movement instituted by him to bring on a reduction of gas and electric rates in Appleton, and the park committee, of which A. L. Franke is chairman, will report on the progress of plans to improve Erb park.

Fox Claims State Costs Can be Cut About 50 Per Cent

Democrat Says Slashes Wouldn't Impair Essential Services

Chilton—P—Opening his campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor, Leo P. Fox, Chilton, told an audience in his home town last night that state expenditures could be reduced 50 per cent "without impairment of any of the essential services of government."

Declaring that increased taxation and economic stress are traceable in part to mismanagement of governmental affairs, Fox declared the state has been converted into a "veritable wonderland of bureaucracy."

He challenged the right of the legislature to pass the law creating the unemployment council and delegating to it executive powers and executive authority.

"If the present governor does not think he is able to exercise the executive powers without a council... why should not this council consist of the duly elected officers of the state?" Fox asked.

Appealing for "return to constitutional government he urged repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law and enactment of fair laws governing public utilities.

"Whispering Campaign"—Speaking to a crowd which filled Ringling theater and overflowed to the adjoining courthouse lawn, former Gov. Walter J. Kohler, campaigning for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, vigorously defended himself last night against what he termed "the beginning of a whispering campaign."

Reports emanating from Madison, he said, quoted him as favoring abandonment of the railroads' full crew law. Such reports are entirely unfounded, he said.

"The law referred to in this whispering campaign," he explained, "was passed in 1929, during my administration. I have never said that I was sorry I had endorsed it."

Although the law originally was drafted in the interest of public safety, Kohler said, it is now apparent that it assures jobs to many railroad workers who otherwise might be unemployed.

Another departure from his prepared address was prompted by advances from Rich and Center, where Kohler spoke in the afternoon, that pickpockets were active in his audience there and had obtained approximately $500. He warned his hearers to "watch your pocketbooks."

Kohler urged voters of Wisconsin to go to the polls with the idea of sending to Madison a group of legislators who will put into effect an economy program to meet the general reduction of incomes of the state's citizens.

Two Committees to Convene Next Week

With the poor, street and bridge and finance committee meetings already out of the way, the three days preceding the council meeting next week are apt to be unusually quiet. Few matters were referred to committees at the last meeting of the common council, and with the meeting already held there remain only the meetings of the ordinance and judiciary committees.

The ordinance committee will discuss the proposed ordinances, one placing lot 17, Block 12A, Bell Heights in the local business district and the other transferring lots 7 to 12 of block 72, First Ward park to the heavy manufacturing district. The judiciary committee has on its docket the dog claim of L. D. Strutz.

County Agent Visits Three More 4-H Clubs

Three more Outagamie-co 4-H clubs were visited Thursday by Gusar A. Sell, county agricultural agent, who inspected projects and work members have been doing during the last three months. They were Centro-Sunrise club, River-view club, and Leelanau club all in the northern part of the county.

Projects undertaken are calves, sheep, pigs, corn, potatoes and cabbage. The live stock all was well cared for, Mr. Sell said, the groups showing much interest in their activities. Many members plan to enter exhibits in the annual Seymour fair next week.

Building Permits

Two building permits were issued by John N. Weiland, building inspector. They were granted to John Smith, 1403 S. Jefferson-st., addition to residence, cost $40; and H. H. Helbie, 858 E. North-st., open porch, cost $75.

JIMMY WALKER COMES UP SMILING

"Round One" was over, and it was a broadly smiling Jimmy Walker (left) who emerged from the State Capitol at Albany, N. Y., after the first day of his hearing on removal charges before Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt. With the New York mayor was Mrs. Walker, and a husky state trooper cleared the way through a dense crowd.

Consider Closing of Duck Hunting Season

BY BERT CLAFIN

Just now there is up before the people for consideration a subject of much concern to the hunters of Wisconsin, the open season for the coming fall. There appears to be a misunderstanding among the hunters as to the import of the meeting to be held at Madison. Many seem to think that a two year closing of all hunting is to be considered.

Instead of that the matter under consideration is the closing of duck hunting from Sept. 16 to Oct. 1, and from Dec. 1 to the 20.

I recently received a questionnaire from Haskell Noyes, chairman of the conservation commission, which outlined some 40 questions to be answered. It covered many angles of hunting. Some were non-essential, and some actually silly, as for instance, forbidding the use of repeating and automatic guns. The inconsistency of such a ruling must be apparent when it is considered that a daily bag limit of fifteen birds is in force. What matters if it is a repeating gun, or one having two barrels is used in shooting that limit? What we want is more supervision to see that the law now in force is obeyed.

Among the questions was one asking for opinions on the time and length of the open season for hunting various game. I offered my version as follows: An open season from Sept. 16 to Nov. 15, with rest days interspersed weekly to cut down the actual days for legal shooting to 30.

My reason for desiring an open season to begin Sept. 16 is to enable the hunters to get some of the summer ducks, such as teal and locally raised mallards. Of course, mallards are hardy birds and they remain until ice covers our waters. Still, if the season is not open in September the local birds will fall prey for the most part to Illinois gunners.

Reports are coming in that waterfowl will be more plentiful than they were last year, when they were woefully scarce. That is known to be a fact by all honest hunters who really know something about the situation. There are franks and "wiseacres" in every thing, and some of these claimed there was no shortage last season, but of course that was not the case, as clearly shown by investigations carried on by capable men.

I do not favor closing Sunday hunting, for many of our fellows work during the week and are unable to enjoy their favorite sport except on Sundays, but I do favor certain rest days during each week, and I claim that thirty days of shooting is enough for a season. I also favor a season bag limit, rather than a daily bag limit, for the reason that it would hamper the market shooters and enable wardens to check up on them.

Our wildfowl came down last season than is usually the case, but they are getting very scarce as compared with what we formerly had, and something must be done if we are to save this "king of sports."

Suggest Projects To Provide Jobs

Many suggestions for work that could be done by men who are receiving city aid have been turned over to Mayor John Goodland, Jr., by residents of the city.

Park improvements suggested as work for these men include: the laying out of baseball diamonds and tennis courts, the construction of a retaining wall in Jones park, wading pools, removal of dead branches from trees and the improvement of Erb park. School work advised was the improvement of school grounds, grass-cutting, and the repair of buildings.

Other suggestions were ditch-digging, the opening of streets, laying of water mains and sewers, weed-cutting, improvement of Memorial Dr. boulevard, construction of skating rinks and a municipal bathing beach on the river, the raising of unsightly buildings which could be condemned, collection of wood for use as fuel for indigents, improving an addition to the Municipal golf course, the painting of ornamental light posts, the removal of two stumps at the corner of Commercial and Morrison-sts., removing the intersections of Morrison and Roosevelt-sts. at the corner of Drew and Roosevelt-sts. to remove a sharp jag, and the construction of a sidewalk on Roosevelt-st. to connect Darke and Drew-sts.

Green Bay Veteran to Get More Compensation

Unpaid compensation amounting to approximately $5,000 since 1922 will be paid Bernard Cummings, Green Bay, by the U. S. Veterans bureau, according to word received here this morning by Congressman George J. Schneider from bureau headquarters at Milwaukee. Hoover Speech Puts Campaign On Clear Basis

Makes Paramount Issue One of Conservatism Against Radicalism

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—President Hoover's acceptance speech has put the national campaign on a definite and clear cut basis. Mr. Hoover appealing for another chance on the ground that he has done the best he could with a difficult situation, that things are on the mend and that America will slowly but surely overcome the effects of the depression under his continued administration.

While Mr. Hoover went further than he ever did before toward the wet side of the prohibition controversy, he made the paramount issue one of conservatism versus radicalism. It furnishes the keynote of the whole campaign, expressed in a single sentence:

"A representative Democracy, progressive and unafraid to meet its problems, but basing them upon the foundations of experience, and not upon the wave of emotion or the insensate demands of a radicalism which grasps at every opportunity to exploit the sufferings of a people."

Mr. Hoover's speech sounded over the radio much more emphatic than it reads in cold type. Inspired by the enthusiasm of his visible audience in Constitution hall, the president put more force and aggressiveness in his talk than is his custom.

Like Congress Speech

The speech nevertheless was more of a presidential address, written in the style of a message to congress, than a campaign oration. Much of the address was given over to a review of economic conditions and the efforts made by the government to keep the economic collapse. This is a hard thesis to expound, because people do not easily visualize the dire things that might have happened and are only concerned with the distressful things that do happen. Politically, however, it was deemed necessary for the president to give the background of the crisis in order to gain the sympathy of his hearers.

As to promises for the future, the policies he proposed present nothing that has not been known in the last several weeks in connection with the economic reconstruction of the country, but it was Mr. Hoover's opportunity just the same of call attention to the remedial measures in the hope that if they bear fruit the voters will give him full credit at the polls.

By giving his own position unequivocally on prohibition, Mr. Hoover ended many months of speculation. He went further than the Republican platform in the sense that the plank adopted in Chicago did not commit members of the Republican party either to retention or repeal of the 18th amendment but merely proposed that the question of revision of the constitution be submitted in the regular way for the consideration of the people. Mr. Hoover, after pointing out that the president has no authority to change the constitution and that he will continue to enforce the law, made it known that he was opposed to retention of the 18th amendment in its present form. He declared in favor of a change. He did not merely say the question should be voted upon by the people but announced that on such a vote he would personally register his opposition to the 18th amendment.

It is as if on the concrete proposal suggested by the Republican platform Mr. Hoover voted "no" on the subject of the retention of the 18th amendment and voted "aye" on the question of revision of the amendment. In other words, he made his choice definitely instead of accepting the Republican platform position of merely submitting the question without a commitment either way.

Captures Moderates

While Mr. Hoover therefore will not satisfy the extreme wets who want repeal and nothing else in its place, he will capture those of the wet group who recognize that revision of the 18th amendment, giving virtually complete power to the states, has a better chance of bringing back the lawful distribution of alcoholic beverages than a long drawn out fight on repeal alone. The president also will retain the dry vote, with exception of a few who will support a prohibition third party. Many millions of drys when presented with a choice between Mr. Roosevelt, who favors repeal, and Mr. Hoover who favors revision, will prefer the latter because those who are normally Republicans will vote the Republican ticket anyhow, while the extreme wets who care more about economic issues and taxes, to be regular Republicans will prefer the president to remain in power on grounds other than prohibition.

Looked at broadly, therefore, Mr. Hoover has worked out of a difficult position thrust upon him by the platform plank and now that he has expressed himself on prohibition he can devote the rest of his campaign largely to economic issues, on which he feels the presidency should be decided in November.

The Hoover speech leaves many openings for Democratic attack and even on prohibition he will be asked to explain how the saloon or speakeasy can be eliminated under his plan without continuing federal interference in state affairs. Mr. Hoover says American statesmanship is capable of working out a solution which will protect the dry states against invasion and will avoid the return of the saloon. While he will be asked to make a specific proposal as to how this can be done, the chances are he will try to keep aloof from detailed discussion.

If Governor Roosevelt takes up the attack or other issues besides prohibition, he will find Mr. Hoover ready to respond as Republican strategy will be to keep the attention of the country focused

Old Clothing to Be Collected by Relief Council

The Appleton Relief and Welfare council will conduct its annual drive for old clothing the latter part of September, Mrs. Paul Hackbert, head of the campaign committee, announced today. The drive will be held then as housecleaning time is considered the best time for contributions of cast-off clothing. Early housecleaners are asked to store away any old clothes they may desire to contribute until the drive opens.

The storeroom, which has given out thousands of articles of clothing since last December, has saved the city hundreds of dollars, and this winter it is expected that there will be an even heavier demand for clothing.

The drive this year also will include the solicitation of old furniture, as the committee has discovered that many poor families are sadly in need of the essential household furnishings, such as stoves, beds, tables, chairs, etc.

Hoover's Speech Rapped in Britain

References to War Debts And Tariffs Assailed By Empire Press

London—P—British newspapers criticized President Hoover's acceptance speech sharply today, especially that part of it referring to war debts and tariffs.

Most of them added, however, that the speech was more of a campaign document than a declaration of state policy.

While the speech seemed "primarily intended to influence votes," the Times said, "the references to the debts and tariffs showed a determination to ignore the main causes of the depression."

"He was careful, however," it added, "not to close the door to future negotiations."

The Liberal News-Chronicle, which sponsors free trade, said the speech was intended to encourage the British delegation at Ottawa to keep the door open to possible arrangements with America and also to enable the president to open the door to debt revision.

After praising the "admirable record" of the president's foreign policy, the Telegraph rapped smartly at the references to war debts.

"It is largely owing to the existence of the debt obligations and the impossibility of liquidating them," it said, "that the world is in the present condition and the American people are condemned to bear burdens immensely greater than would be involved in cancellation."

Wants Guarantee Of Private Funds In Badger Banks

Schmedemann Outlines His Aims in Seeking Governorship

Oconomowoc—P—Mayor A. G. Schmedemann of Madison, Democratic candidate for governor, declared in a campaign statement made public today that he favors the guaranteeing of private as well as public bank deposits, legislation for semi-annual payment of taxes and full participation in highway work made possible by federal relief funds.

Schmedemann spoke at a celebration in honor of Oconomowoc's one hundredth anniversary.

Charging that "bitter factional misgovernment by the disrupted Republican party has increased governmental expenses six fold in the last 3 years," the Madison mayor called upon all Democrats to stay out of the Republican primary battle in September.

The mayor took issue with that part of the Democratic state platform adopted at Green Bay which provided for limiting expenditures for road purposes to the maintenance of existing roads.

Calling attention to the Wagner-Garner bill, a joint Democratic measure making $126,000,000 available in emergency highway funds to the states he said he is definitely opposed to any policy which would prevent Wisconsin participating with the $3,000,000 of federal aid it receives.

"The building of good roads will provide a tremendous amount of employment just when we need it most," he said. "The cost of building a mile of concrete highway, moreover, has decreased from $30,000 to around $15,000 a mile."

Mayor Schmedemann said he believes a bill should be passed providing for semi-annual payment of taxes and declared that this method of tax collection is now working successfully in more than two-thirds of the states.

"At a recent session of the legislature a law was passed guaranteeing the safety of public funds deposited in banks of Wisconsin," the candidate said, "I believe that this law should be extended to include all banks so that the deposits of every citizen of the state in all banks would be definitely guaranteed against loss."

"This would do more to prevent hoarding than all the other actions which have been taken to date. In order to have a prosperous community an ample supply of money and a free flow of credit is necessary, and neither can be obtained unless every depositor is absolutely insured against loss of money deposited in banks."

Mayor Schmedemann declared that if the Democratic party again becomes the "militant minority" it once was Wisconsin would soon return to normalcy in state government.

Train Hits Truck, 2 Children Hurt

Machine Owned by Company That Formerly Operated in Appleton

Two children were injured at Oshkosh Thursday evening when a coal truck owned by H. A. Nofke was demolished by a freight train at the South-Soo line crossing in Oshkosh. The Nofke Fuel company, which formerly operated in Appleton, moved to Oshkosh about a year ago.

The children were occupants of the box of the truck, driven by Burton Espamer, 617 Ashland-ave, Oshkosh. They are Edwin Case, 7-year old son of Ray Case and Andrew Espamer, 17, a brother of the driver of the truck.

The Case child received injuries to its lower abdomen and a severe cut on the right leg. The Espamer boy was cut and bruised.

According to the driver of the truck and witnesses interviewed by the police, the flashing light signal, which is the protection afforded by the railroad company at that crossing, did not start operating and giving the warning signal until the engine already was on the crossing. Espamer stated that he turned in the direction in which the engine was moving when he saw the accident could not be avoided. The side of the engine caught the truck and dragged it more than half a block.

See Chance for Mrs. Caraway to Keep Senate Job

"Kingfish" Long to Aid Arkansas Woman in Campaign Fight

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington—If Mrs. Hattie Caraway wins the Democratic senatorial primaries in Arkansas on Aug. 9 she will become, since primaries are always equivalent to election down there, the first woman ever elected to the United States Senate for a full term.

The precedent of masculinity in the upper house will then have been smashed completely.

There seems to be a very fair chance that Mrs. Caraway will do just that, because six men have entered the race against her and they are going to split up the vote. It almost seems as if all the unemployed male politicians of Arkansas had suddenly decided that the lady would be very easy meat when she came up for re-election and acted accordingly.

But, although it is likely enough that one man might have defeated the widow of the late Senator William H. Caraway, it is less likely that six men will be able to beat her. She has a strong nucleus of voters among those who idolized her late husband and those who will vote for her either because she is a woman or because she is the incumbent.

"Honorary" Senator
Being a senator has been a sort of honorary affair for Mrs. Caraway up to date. She was appointed by a gallant governor and the state organization agreed to back her thereafter in the special election to fill out her husband's term, which expires next March. She had a couple of opponents then, but won overwhelmingly.

She flabbergasted the politicians of the state when she suddenly declared as a candidate for re-election to the next six-year term.

It had been a graceful gesture to make her a senator for just a little while, but the theory was that she would merely sit back and draw her salary. Political ambition was the last thing that anyone would have attributed to the demure, retiring Hattie Caraway.

Faithful in attendance and attention, she came to feel that she was adequate for the job and that she liked it.

As a senator, Mrs. Caraway has been a sad and lonely widow, but has demonstrated plenty of good sense. An unsophisticated, simple woman, she has voted independently, has disregarded the leadership of Senator Joe Robinson, who is as much a political boss as anyone in Arkansas, and stood on the lobby—male and female—who sought to use her and capitalize her as the first female senator and has voted in sympathy with the masses of people in her state.

Her seat was next to that ebullient friend of the people, Kingfish Huey Long of Louisiana. One day Huey bounced into her office and announced: "You've done a good work. I like you. I'm going to help you." So he went and made a Senate speech in high praise of Mrs. Caraway, asking the people of Arkansas to re-elect her for the "sake of the common people."

He ended her record as showing votes for the progressive measures, for farm relief, for oil and lumber tariffs, dwelling especially on her votes for high taxes on the rich.

"The independence that has been shown by that lady is a remarkable credit and will stand forever as a landmark to the womanhood of the nation," said Long.

Mrs. Caraway hasn't made any speeches in the Senate, but Arkansas is being flooded with copies of Long's speeches. Her office here is a hive of activity while she campaigns by radio and in person in the state.

Other Candidates
Neither Robinson or the state organization appears to be identified with any of the seven senatorial candidates, but Long, since his hot attacks on the Senate majority leader, has become something of a hero with the anti-Robinson element in Arkansas. His speech is likely to be a lot of help.

The other candidates are former Senator W. F. Kirby, defeated by Caraway years ago; ex-Governor Charles H. Brough, National Committee man Vincent M. Miles, former American Legion Commander O. L. Bodenhamer, M. L. Martin, a Little Rock attorney, and former Sheriff W. G. Rutton, running as a wet. Reports indicate that the vote is likely to be widely split and that there is not yet one man expected to run well ahead of the rest.

HOOVER FACES CHEERING SUPPORTERS AT NOTIFICATION

"My countrymen have a right to know my conclusions" This is the scene on the rostrum at Constitutional Hall, Washington, as President Hoover (right) faced microphones and widely demonstrated throats to make his speech accepting the Republican renomination for the presidency. Mrs. Hoover, dressed in a blue summer frock and carrying a small fan, is seen at the extreme left.

Broadway Loyal "Jimmie" Despite Seabury Charges

Wisecracking Mayor of New York Always Welcome Among Actors

BY MARK BARRON
New York —(P)— It's "Jimmie, ol' boy, ol' boy" when they speak of his honor, the Mayor on Broadway, and there he finds a permanent "welcome" mat of incandescent lights.

The dapper, wisecracking Walker has the soul of an actor, and it was for these canny talents of his to stage an effective entrance and always to ad lib the appropriate retort that Broadway recognized his as one of its native sons.

From the Bohemian surroundings of Greenwich Village, Walker naturally drifted to the lane of bright lights, and more particularly to Tin Pan Alley. His song writing career was a fairly impressive one, although it takes him when he enters a night club and the orchestra strikes up his best known song, "Will You Love Me in December as You Did in May."

In 1907 he turned out a mammy song called "Black Jim," and there followed "Kiss All the Girls for Me," "I Like Your Way," "So Long, Mister Jasper, So Long," and "Meet Me After School."

He wrote "After They Gather the Hay" for a vaudeville singer named Jeanette Allen, and her picture was published on the cover. Later she became Mrs. Walker.

Part of Show
Walker not only is an ardent night rider, but he is also often a part of the show. When Eddie Dowling opened "Honey Moon Lane," Walker stood in his box and made a speech to the audience. George White once had the character of Jimmie appearing for a brief moment in a scene in one of his revues. For one performance the democratic Walker stepped on the stage and played himself.

In other precincts there might have been waverings in loyalty toward the mayor, but Broadway has continually put up a solid and militaristic front in support of Jimmie.

He was never too busy to attend a dinner or other function given by the Friars, the Lambs, the Actors Fund and other theatrical organizations. He has been a ubiquitous and able master of ceremonies for the Rialto's scintillating merry-go-round.

In repartee he has held his own and often surpassed the best efforts of the highest salaried comedians. He frequently those people of the theater as his companions for his personal social activities.

Probably his two closest friends are A. C. Blumenthal, the motion picture magnate, and his wife, Peggy Fears, a former "Follies" girl who has recently become a stage producer.

His favorite recreation is to visit the Blumenthal home and play the piano for the amusement of a few friends.

Walker really has an excellent knowledge of the technical side of the theater. Acting incognito, he has advised several of his producer friends in the directing of their new shows.

U. S. Chamber Looks For Further Slash In Federal Expense

Washington —(P)— At least another $800,000,000 reduction in federal expenses is expected in the next session of congress by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Henry I. Harriman, president of the chamber, said so in a statement today as the executive committee of the non-governmental agency met.

Federal appropriations for this year are $800,000,000 less than those for last year, he said, adding: "Analysis of the appropriations made by congress for the current fiscal year... makes it clear that it is reasonable to expect congress during the coming winter... to reduce them further by at least... $800,000,000."

He suggested that federal activity be increased now and in 1932, be placed on the same bases, including salaries, as in 1925, that public construction and public works be reduced $200,000,000; that veterans administration appropriations be slashed $100,000,000 and that $150,000,000 be saved by "abandonment of only a part of the activities which the chamber has repeatedly opposed for the reason that they are improperly competitive with private enterprise."

Arrangements for the meeting are being made by Stephen D. Balliet, chairman of the county Democratic committee.

Old Timers Tell Of Walker's 1st Days at Albany

Mayor Began to Win Fame As New York Minority Leader in Senate

BY E. C. FAY
Albany, N. Y.—(P)— "I knew him when—" say the old timers at the capitol of Mayor Walker of New York.

Stories of the distant days of the dapper Jimmy's early career again go the rounds, narratives of the times when he was "just one of those assemblymen" from New York and of a later and vastly more important stage when he was majority leader of the state senate and but one step from the mayor's office in the New York city hall.

For four years Walker was an inconspicuous member of the Tammany delegation in the assembly, a young fellow with little to say on the floor of the house and minor posts on a few unimportant committees. He first entered the state legislature in 1911.

Alfred E. Smith, who had come to the assembly some years before, befriended young Walker. They roomed together and the capitol chroniclers say were "broke" together. In those lean years, Smith had two suits, one of which he kept cleaned and pressed for occasions. Walker's sartorial inclination was developing then; the best suit clothed Jimmy's trim frame frequently when Smith wanted to wear it—or so the story goes.

Walker moved out of the political doldrums when he graduated from the assembly to the senate. His name was to start in debate, he displayed ability to absorb in minutes the point of involved and weary legislation. He rose to minority leader, then majority leader.

Whether he directed minority attack on the Republican majority of the senate or fought off a Republican minority attack during his years as majority party leader, he had a gallery.

He had acquired some of Smith's debating mannerisms and to these he added his own characteristics. Smith's piston-like plunger of a pointed finger at the floor to emphasize a shouted point were Walker's.

Psychology was put into play by Walker when he arose from his seat to debate. He stepped slowly into the center aisle of the senate, smoothed out the last possible wrinkle from his coat, walked forward in silence, glanced to the right and left at the galleries and then opened fire on his opponents.

His office in the capitol was besieged. Added to a host of friends he had drawn to him were those seeking passage of legislation and who believed Walker's dynamic self could get the bills made into law.

A sporting measure was the bit of legislation which gave Walker his first real prominence. The bill—later to become the "Walker law"—legalized and placed under jurisdiction of the athletic commission in the state.

Straight Lines Feature New Fashions for Fall

Straight lines will replace the circular skirts of last season's fashions, according to Appleton dress buyers, who prophesy a narrower and shorter length frock for daytime wear this fall.

The full, graceful skirt with its ankle length will feature evening wear but daytime clothes will become more tailored and trim, they say.

The new clothes for fall will be of midlength length featuring: street suits, knitted suits and tailored dresses of heavy crepes. The clips and chalky crepe trimmings of last season will give way to caper shades, pyramid shape buttons and bright round, colorful buttons. Pleats will come back for streetwear, to aid the straight lines of the new season. However the pleats will have a great deal of style about them, stylists say, some fitting diagonally on a skirt or coming at the side instead of directly in the front or back of the frock.

A glimpse of the Gibson Girl of a gay nineties will be seen in the new fall for box neck scarfs that will be worn with all types of frocks and flutter about the neck of evening gowns.

Black is the center of fashion for fall, with brown a leader in the color group since emphasis will swing from the summer pastels to the very dark shades. However, buyers say that this season many bright colors will be worn according to individual taste.

Final Action in Walker Case May Depend on Courts

Exact Plans of Mayor's Attorneys for Appeal Still Remain in Doubt

tuition, brings the mayor and the commissioner of police under the law as it relates to the removal of county officials, on which the constitution is very specific. This has never been ruled on by the courts.

Agrees to Delay
While the governor's counsel holds the executive has the authority to sit in judgment on the mayor, the challenge to this right has already resulted in the governor agreeing to withhold his decision until after the supreme court meets, Aug. 19 to rule on the question. The governor's advisers feared the final ruling of the courts than the possibility of a long delay due to appeals of the lower courts' ruling. The governor has been reporting preparing to give his decision in the Walker case before going on any extended campaign trip in the interests of his presidential candidacy, and litigation might delay his decision even beyond the November election.

The hearing was in recess today until Monday. Governor Roosevelt was in Hyde Park and Mayor Walker had gone to New York. Mrs. Walker, who has been ill, remained at her Albany hotel. The strain of the first day's hearing, Thursday, which she attended, was more than she had expected.

So far, the mayor has denied flatly that he accepted money from the Equitable Bus company for a European trip; has said that he did not know when he received Reliance Bronze and Steel bonds, or that the company made traffic posts purchased by the city, and said there was no hidden reason behind Paul Block's stock deal which netted the mayor $248,000.

So far, the governor has not reached the matter of Russell E. Sherwood, who has been described as the mayor's financial secretary. It has been charged Sherwood in five and a half years handled stock transactions for more than $850,000. The mayor has denied Sherwood was his agent.

Hearings on claims against the estate of the late Estelle Ray Rad. Sherwood, who won several thousand dollars to Appleton institutions and established trust funds for helping the city's needs, will be heard at Tuesday's special term of probate court.

Other hearings will be heard on and in estate of Louis Friedman, 2nd and August Rott, heard on administration in estate of Andrew Bauer, hearing on claims against estates of William Henry Ferguson and Fred and Nick and Elizabeth Morvener, hearing on final account in estates of William H. Hackleman, John Hamilton and E. Kate Jackson.

Forbes Divorces Ruth Chatterton

Actor Granted Decree in Nevada on Grounds Of Mental Cruelty

Minden, Nev.—(P)— Another shattered actor-actress romance—that of Ruth Chatterton and Ralph Forbes—was sealed and filed away in the court records of this "Reno annex" divorce center today.

The decree was granted to Forbes yesterday after he made a quick automobile trip from Reno, filed his complaint and went through the formality of a before the District Judge Edgar Eather. Judge Eather then ordered all papers in the case sealed.

Two attorneys, George A. Bartlett of Reno, and Walter E. Burke of Los Angeles, represented Miss Chatterton. The actress was reported to be in New York.

Previous plans, the attorneys intimated, were for a friendly arrangement—along the lines of the recent Ann Harding-Harry Bannister divorce—under which Miss Chatterton was to come here and file the suit, using Forbes' residence in the state to give the court jurisdiction. No explanation was made concerning the switch in the supposed plans.

William Woodburn, Forbes' attorney, said the decree was obtained on the ground of mental cruelty and said a property settlement, the terms of which were not announced, was approved by the court. Conflicting interests, especially since Miss Chatterton's rise to film stardom, were the basis of the complaint, the attorney intimated.

Forbes and Miss Chatterton were married Dec. 20, 1925. It was recently announced in Hollywood, the actress and her present leading man, George Brent, plan to marry soon.

Your Health Question and Its Answer

By J. A. PANNECK
Chiropractor and Author

QUESTION: I am troubled with colds. They commence early in the fall and continue all winter. Will Chiropractic benefit my condition? Please answer in your column. — E. J. S.

ANSWER: Colds are the result of lowered bodily resistance and especially a weakened state of the membranes involved, usually nose, throat and bronchial tubes. Having colds indicates poor bodily elimination. Chiropractic adjustments strengthen the resistance because they increase function or bring about normal function to tissues which are subject to lowered resistance and at the same time promote elimination from the body.

Right here I might say that the basis of disease is pressure on nerves at the spine interfering with normal function of the organs of the body. Chiropractic adjustments restore normal function to the organs by releasing this pressure at the spine.

Therefore, I suggest you consult a competent Chiropractor at once.

QUESTION: I am troubled with heart disease. Will chiropractic adjustments help me? — F. S. L.

ANSWER: In a majority of heart diseases yes. The heart does its work perfectly and remains healthy and strong as long as the nerves supplying it are not interfered with by pressure. Chiropractic adjustments will remove that pressure.

QUESTION: What is that instrument you are using in your practice that patients say is so wonderful? — H. T. M.

ANSWER: This instrument is called the Neurocolometer. It locates for us the imbalanced nerve and then by our check reading after the adjustment is given, it proves to us whether or not the adjustment was given satisfactorily and correctly.

QUESTION: I am troubled with colds. They commence early in the fall and continue all winter. Will Chiropractic benefit my condition? Please answer in your column. — E. J. S.

ANSWER: Colds are the result of lowered bodily resistance and especially a weakened state of the membranes involved, usually nose, throat and bronchial tubes. Having colds indicates poor bodily elimination. Chiropractic adjustments strengthen the resistance because they increase function or bring about normal function to tissues which are subject to lowered resistance and at the same time promote elimination from the body.

Right here I might say that the basis of disease is pressure on nerves at the spine interfering with normal function of the organs of the body. Chiropractic adjustments restore normal function to the organs by releasing this pressure at the spine.

Therefore, I suggest you consult a competent Chiropractor at once.

THE PRESIDENT AND PROHIBITION

President Hoover's acceptance address would have excited less interest were it not for the fact that he was expected to say something definite about prohibition.

And prohibition today is the most important matter that faces the American people, constituting as it does the largest single factor that a resolute government might use to return the Ship of State to a steady course.

Cheers, great outbursts of applause greeted the president as he discussed a multitude of subjects. The thousands who listened constituted an invited audience.

And yet there was a great opportunity for laughter. That was when the president in speaking of prohibition declared that "my countrymen have a right to know my conclusions upon" this subject.

It is easy to see that the only thing that could shake "conclusions" from Mr. Hoover was an approaching national election. We may therefore thank our system of government for these forced elections that come at opportune times for the people but at inopportune times for those who have such a difficult time making up their minds.

Mr. Hoover says his conclusions "are clear and need not be misunderstood."

They are fairly clear. But they are now antagonistic to the Republican plank, weak and shambling as it is. The result therefore is anything but clear.

Mr. Hoover's position is well worded. It is likely to satisfy a great many and lead to thousands of those jewels called votes.

When a man, with all the opportunity in the world, such as was afforded by the Wickersham report, and at least with some knowledge of the hellish conditions prevailing in this country, will withhold comment of any constructive nature until occurrences force him to speak, and then takes a position out of joint with the plank of his party that he approved at the time of the convention only two months ago, the situation is becoming thicker and foggier instead of clearer.

The Republican plank declared that "the progress which has been thus far made" by prohibition "must be preserved" and that there must be retained "in the federal government power to preserve the gains already made" and prevent "the return of the saloon and attendant abuses."

Mr. Hoover now casts aside this plank, most of which was worthless language but all of which gave the chance for dispute and delay, and favors the return to the states of the power that was theirs and that they foolishly surrendered, subject only to the national government preventing the return of the saloon.

In this he will have difficulty. We may think that the accomplishments of prohibition consisted of speakeasies, jails, asylums, morgues and cemeteries. But others may see other things. And the more of such "gains" or "accomplishments" that are seen the more certain it is that congress will not agree upon the necessary and definite amendment to submit to the states.

Mr. Hoover's most intimate friends can hardly have much admiration for his vacillating attitude. You could put your finger upon him like you could on a drop of mercury.

How much of his present attitude is expediency?

Let facts speak for themselves. Only six weeks ago Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, one of our higher grade statesmen, and, by the way, heretofore a supporter of the Eighteenth Amendment, introduced in congress a repeal of that amendment with this exception, that there was prohibited "the sale of intoxicating liquor within the United States or any territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for consumption at the place of sale, commonly known as the saloon."

This proposed amendment clearly covered Mr. Hoover's present-day suggestion. But where was Mr. Hoover and the exalted influence of his office, always so interested in improving the country, wiping out its evils, and satisfying the legitimate aspirations of the people?

The Hoover Republicans in the senate defeated the Glass amendment. It need ed only a handful of their votes to give it the necessary two-thirds required for passage.

"Very good," then declared Senator Glass, "write your own amendment."

But Mr. Hoover's supporters looked out the window at the broad expanse of the murmuring Potomac wending its silent way through the centuries to the sea, and they thought not upon or about prohibition nor the recently adopted platform pledged "to do something about it."

They saw on the one side Bishop Cannon with his battle-axe and they knew that the president would have a difficult time of it this fall, so they continued to look upon the peaceful Potomac.

Meanwhile the president in the White House, perfectly aware that "my countrymen have a right to know my conclusions," himself continued to look upon the peaceful Potomac. That river, like all great rivers, lordly and majestic, appeared as a haven of quiet rest, whereas the Republican platform, then approved by the Republican candidate, contained, from a practical standpoint, something approaching an impossibility, and therefore strife, dissension and arrival nowhere.

No Republican would take up Senator Glass's gauge of battle. Insults hurled in their teeth they smilingly accepted, and had they more teeth, they would have turned them to receive more insults. Anything is preferable to undertaking the impossible, the show-up before the election.

The Republican plank on prohibition is a monstrosity of indefiniteness. The people must bear in mind that no improvement will come until two-thirds of congress can agree upon every word, the exact language of the new amendment. That is why the use of indefinite language like retaining the gains or accomplishments or ridding the country of the saloon and "its attendant evils" will probably mean that nothing will result at all in the way of improvement.

Anyway Mr. Hoover has finally made a definite statement. Judged from his conduct, his opinion on this question changes almost monthly. What it will be after the election no man can know.

To cap the climax of his changing attitude the voter should read the president's plain portrayal of prohibition evils. He said:

"An increasing number of states and municipalities are proving themselves unwilling to engage in enforcement. Due to these forces there is in large sections an increasing traffic in liquor. But worse than this, there has been in those areas a spread of disrespect not only for this law but for all laws, grave dangers of practical nullification of the constitution, a degeneration in municipal government and an increase in subsidized crime and violence."

Mr. Hoover is putting it lightly but he has painted some, at least, of the wretched condition prevailing substantially all over this country.

After painting that condition he tells about his approval of the Republican plank which, as he says, "does not dictate to the conscience of any member of the party."

Why did Mr. Hoover approve a plank in the platform of his party that gives every official the right to do as he pleases concerning a subject which the president himself defines as paralyzing, corrupting and degenerating substantial parts of the nation?

It would be hard to discover in the record of the Republican party such a weak and spineless provision.

If the people expect to unscramble that omelet they carry a beautiful faith.

It is not certain by any means that if Mr. Hoover be elected again, four years hence we will not be exactly where we are today with prohibition except that crime will have doubled and the corrugated sordid of corruption eaten further into our body politic.

Mr. Hoover today has taken almost the exact position that Al Smith took four years ago.

Mr. Hoover has taken today the position that Senator Glass put up to the senate six weeks ago.

It doesn't seem as though we reward any longer our men who have vision and foresight, yes, and courage, to understand what is down the road and to grapple with it in manly fashion.

Shall we reward him who holds aloof until forced to venture an opinion?

Opinions Of Others

ROOSEVELT AND THE ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAY

It remains for the avidly political-minded to make capital out of the exchange between Candidate Roosevelt and President Hoover regarding the St. Lawrence Waterway. Both parties pledged themselves in their platforms to the support of the seaway. In this respect there is nothing to choose between them.

Gov. Roosevelt's communication was based on a report from his State Power Authority, which had come to the conclusion that a tunnel had occurred in the treaty negotiations between the United States and Canada over the amount which New York would pay toward completion of the project. Gov. Roosevelt took the short cut by immediately offering his services to the President to solve this difficulty. If that was a political move, it was also part of his duty as governor of New York and a good American.

President Hoover pointed out, as the State department had already informed the State Power Authority, that the treaty was one thing and the question raised by New York was another. The treaty, the President believes, is coming along nicely, undisturbed by the question of New York's contribution to the waterway expenses, which is purely a local matter between the federal government and New York.

Thus the point is cleared up, and it may as well be dropped as a political question.—Detroit News.

POLITICAL stock went up a bit the other night as Prexy Hoover made his acceptance address at the notification ceremonies coming as it did, on the same day, on which the National League, it made a whole flock of news for yesterday. . . . thus, two incidents of national note took place on the same day. . . . Herbert very wisely clarified the Republican dry law stand and the dries are slightly distressed. . . . now, where will the dry support be placed? . . . of course, up around here, dry law support and palm trees are equally familiar and people may not know what we're talking about. . . .

Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York should know soon whether he can continue to hold his job. He threatens, though, that if he's kicked out of office he will proceed to run for the governorship of his native state. The way to get somewhere in the United States, sometimes, is to be a good entertainer and then start at the top of the ladder and go down. . . .

Incidentally, the betting odds are about seven to five that Jimmy will keep his job. . . .

Personally, we don't see why Jimmy should be kept in office. He is not the governing type of man. He is essentially a playboy and an entertainer. Years ago he wrote a song and perhaps he should have stuck to that sort of business. He looks, dresses and talks like a very successful New York musical comedy actor. He would make a wonderful host in a night club. He would make a good city greeter—which, indeed, is about the only attention he pays to the governing of New York City. An article we read about him called him the "Clara Bow" of politics. But Jimmy isn't THAT bad. It's his personality that's gotten him by. But personality doesn't reduce the public debt or assure good government. We repeat, Jimmy Walker should be in the Follies. . . .

The Democratic National chairman has said that Franklin Roosevelt would carry every state in the union if the election were held today. But that's the tough part about it—for the Democrats—because people can't vote until next November, and so darned much can happen before that time. . . .

Just Folks

FOOLISH SENTIMENTALISTS

They get us down as fools who stand To watch the children on the sand, Or pause upon our busy way To hear a song bird's roundelay.

Harsh men of reason, stern and cold, Our trivial delights behold. And tell us all earth's gladness lies In being very shrewd and wise.

In panic times or business boom We're captured by a rose in bloom, Or lose a precious hour to stay And hear what sad folks have to say.

Such common things as hills and trees Which every living mortal sees, And sharper men go rushing past Have power to hold us weaklings fast.

They may be right! We may be fools To find such joy in silver pools, But since to beauty were inclined, Our lack of strength we do not mind. (Copyright, 1932, Edgar A. Guest)

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THE HYDROPHOBIA LEGEND

Your volunteer committee of one begs to report progress in the hydrophobia situation. Hydrophobia, the chairman of the committee believes, is akin to this depression-malady which has supplanted high tension and nerve exhaustion in the affection of the Yankee nation. It may be that there are millions out of work, but that is nothing new. There are always millions out of work in this country, and what's more they are determined to stay out of work, even if they have to roach to do so. Only an occasional poor sap goes to jail to achieve his inalienable American privilege.

When the occasional culprit does take the rap, a hundred thousand of us other work dodgers breathe easy for a while. The only notable difference between the millions now out of work and the millions normally out of work is that the present loafers are amateurs at the game, whereas the regular loafers or white collar men are professionals. Then, too, the amateurs are too honest—or too dumb—to do as we tell them to do as we say. We say honest loaf is a noble thing. And so it is if you can arrange the system so that the other fellow will keep on thinking it is so.

Some months ago this column came out unequivocally opposed to rabies as a human institution. In other words I declared, asserted and asseverated that there is no such thing as hydrophobia, meaning rabies in man. At the same time I conceded that rabies prevails among domestic and wild animals. I based my stand on the lack of scientific proof of the occurrence of such disease in man. It has never been satisfactorily proved by the accepted criterion. Koch's law—that is, no one has been able to show that a characteristic disease can be produced by inoculating a normal animal with virus obtained in cultures from an animal that has the disease. Then, too, the laboratory diagnosis of rabies in animals or man hinges on the observation of rather vague "Negri bodies" in the brain tissue, and sometimes good pathologists disagree on the diagnosis in a given instance, one believing he sees the Negri bodies, the other being positive they are not present. So far as alleged cases of human rabies are concerned, the busy physicians who have been privileged to observe such cases usually disagree on the diagnosis.

So there we are. But mark you, if I were bitten or wounded or scratched by an animal presumed to be rabid, I'd want to have the benefit of the doubt. I'd want the animal confined under competent veterinary observation for two weeks. If the veterinary surgeon assured me at the end of that period that the animal presented no suspicious signs or symptoms of rabies, I'd forget it. If the veterinary surgeon could not be positive, I'd want to have the Pasteur anti-rabies treatment started at once. If the animal, are not captured and there was any question of rabies, I'd want two anti-rabies injections right away. If the animal were killed, I'd want the head immediately packed in ice and sent at once to the pathological laboratory by the local health authority, or if such a pathological laboratory were maintained in the community, then the head could be taken in ice and I'd want no further treatment started if the Pathologist's report were positive, or saved for some one who might need it more if the report were negative.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

"WELL, I have mastered this fat mule," said happy Scouty. "As a rule I do what I start out to do, and never give up hope."

"I tried to toss me o'er its head, but I stuck to its back, instead. I claim that's pretty good. I didn't even have a rope."

"All right, we will admit you're fine," said Duncy. "Now let's fall in line and do a little traveling. I'll gladly take the lead."

"If all these rubber beasts stay filled with air I surely will be thrilled. At least we'll get some exercise and that is what we need."

So, off they started. My, what fun! Wee Duncy led and, one by one, the others trailed along behind, as cheerful as could be.

They shortly came up to a fence. Each Tyn used his common sense, and made his beast bounce over it. It was a sight to see.

Soon Windy shouted, "Look ahead! I hope into that woods were led. It will be run to wide around and see what we can find."

"All right," snapped Duncy, "follow me, as I trail through, from tree to tree. I think it is the thickest forest we will ever find."

Right in they went, and my, o' my, the trees and bushes grew real high. "I hope we don't get lost," said one. "It's rather dark in here."

"The trees that grow up out of sight head off the sun and spoil the light. But, if we keep on going, there is nothing we need fear."

Then they ran into real bad luck. Some bushes had large horns that stuck into the rubber animals and made them go flat. Of course the Tyns were surprised when, suddenly, they realized that they were stranded. Coppy said, "That do you think of that?"

At least so his wife claims, during Stratone's trial for wife-beating. She managed to swerve the car in time.

Right across the street from my typewriter, there's an impressive old private residence, and two very nice looking elderly women come and go.

A short time back a flunky used to pop out of the front door and run to get a taxi when one of the inmates wanted to go visiting. But no more.

Now I get a chuckle out of it every time I see the two women going out for the evening without escorts. They still depend on taxis, so one of them got herself a whistle.

Here she is, standing out on the sidewalk so formally dressed, her cheeks bulging and her face red as she blows away at her whistle, trying to get the notice of the driver of a cab parked up on the avenue corner.

Czechoslovakia Recognized
On Aug. 13, 1918, Great Britain recognized Czechoslovakia as an independent nation. It was to be formed out of certain Austro-Hungarian states at the end of the war, and the recognition was made to encourage the operations of Czechoslovakian troops cooperating with the Allies in Russia.

At the same time, it was announced officially in Vienna that Austrian troops were being sent to the western front to aid the hard-pressed German forces there.

Fresh French divisions resumed the offensive on the Oise river, driving the Germans back for more than two miles on a wide front.

British, American and French forces continued their gains in Picardy, capturing thousands of prisoners and great quantities of ammunition and equipment. German prisoners taken in the previous month were estimated at more than 100,000, or the equivalent of 10 German divisions.

Bancroft Scores In Latest Film

Burly Star Carries Away Honors in "Lady And Gent"

"Lady and Gent," title of the picture which opens at the Appleton Theatre, might mean anything. What it happens to mean is a triumph for burly George Bancroft, personally. There's a large, and a capable cast; supporting him, but Bancroft himself carries off the majority of the honors.

Part of this is due to the fact that his role was made to order for him. It's a role that makes him human; makes him a warm and lovable character. He is "Slag" Bailey, a steel-mill worker; but he is more than that. He is a friendly, good-natured, if bungling, fellow of the type that everyone discovers among his own acquaintances at one time or another. With fists that are large and a heart that is still larger, he swaggers through adversity with never a "good-gosh-darn" for the tough breaks he encounters. Misfortune deals him blow after blow, but "Slag" is a man who can "take it."

To all but his big-city pals and his cabaret-frequenting girl friend, he is a shifless good-for-nothing. They alone see his true, native virtue. They know he is a man who never stays whipped.

Finally, the "break" he had been hoping for comes, in an unexpected way. A friend who dies to save "Slag" from trouble bequeaths him a modest home in the small steel-mill town of Ironton.

"Slag" and his girl go to, and assume the duties of foster-parents to their dead pal's 12-year old youngster. There follow several years of regeneration for the pair. Scene after scene of heart-touching, and, at times, exceedingly humorous incidents show them transformed into respected citizens in this homey community.

Wynne Gibson plays the role of "Puff," the calloused girl friend, with fine sympathy. Charles Starrett is inspiring as the grown-up orphan, James Gleason does his best performance as "Pin," the pal.

Ben Lyon, as Reporter, Solves Murder Mystery

If a beautiful girl should accidentally kiss you in a railroad station, and you fell head over heels in love with her, wouldn't you chuck everything and follow her?

For Ben Lyon, spontaneous and dashing as a newspaper reporter in his scintillating role in "By Whose Hand?" on the screen of the Appleton theatre next Wednesday and Thursday there is one answer. "Yes," even if it is setting involved in a series of mysterious murders that take place aboard the speeding Pullman.

Romance and melodrama are blended in the mystery plot of Lyon's latest picture, produced by Columbia, which has the untold setting of an express train at night. The entire action of the picture is unfolded entirely on this train.

Lyon and the girl portrayed by the alluring Barbara Weeks, get caught in a mesh of murder, mystery and humor, along with eleven other passengers on the Pullman.

In support of Lyon and Miss Weeks, Ben Stollhoff the director, assembled an excellent cast of finished screen players, including William V. Mong, Nat. Pang, Neil Pennington, Helene Millard, Ethel Dwyer, William Halligan, Kenneth Thomson, Tom Dugan, Lorin Baker and Dolores Ray, Columbia's latest importation from Broadway.

Holt-Graves Team in "War Correspondent"

The reunion of Jack Holt and Ralph Graves, those two-fisted men whose bitter rivalry was featured in the spectacular films, "Flight," "Dirigible," and "Submarine," brings together in a new Columbia release, "War Correspondent," one of the most popular teams in the history of the movies. Life Lee also is featured in "War Correspondent," which has civil war in modern China as a background for the care-devil exploits of the Holt-Graves team. The picture will be shown at the Appleton Theatre next Friday and Saturday.

In "War Correspondent," Holt plays the role of a reckless, adventure-loving American aviator, who fights as a soldier of fortune in a Chinese army while Graves has the characterization of an up-to-date radio-newspeaking war correspondent. The girl over whom their battle is charming Life Lee. This is not the first time that these two men have struggled for her favor—she was with them in that phenomenal success, "Flight."

Infantile Paralysis Cases Show Decrease

Madison—Only seven cases of poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis, were reported in Wisconsin in July, the first month of the year in which epidemic conditions have been detected in the past, the state board of health said today. In July, 1931 there were 26 cases reported.

During the first six months of the year, the period classed as non-epidemic for the disease, a total of 22 cases was reported, one less than a year ago, the board said. In August, 1931 reported cases reached

Ray Dean to be Master of Ceremonies in Stage Presentation

Ray Dean, master of ceremonies, will have charge of the legitimate stage presentation at the Fox Theatre Sunday. On the screen the film, "A Passport to Hell," with Elissa Landi and Paul Lukas, will be shown.

That smiling master of ceremonies, Ray Dean, has just scored brilliant success in the RKO Circuit while playing at the Wood's Theatre, Chicago. There's no doubt about his marvelous voice and his splendid stage personality will carry you right into the land of jokes and laughs. He and Speaker Lewis that satirical, political humorist, are a pair of entertainers without equal and they will make life seem like new again, free from the common worries of this distressed world. Speaker Lewis will orate on the conditions of the day in a fashion that will make a farce out of debts, taxes, and bankruptcies. His originality is as poignant as that of Will Rogers.

Then there's Burns, Moriarity, and Burns, three boys who are greater than the greatest dancers. They do a pirouette that's nothing short of a sensation—so the metropolitan critics say. And the Six Sun Beach Girls, each one doing a specialty—and you should see their wardrobe.

Demonstrating again her brilliance as a motion picture star, Elissa Landi gives a restrained and compelling portrayal of her role in "A Passport to Hell." As Myra Carson, woman of mystery and uncertain reputation who marries a young army officer to save herself from imprisonment in a war time detention camp, she presents a characterization deftly done, never acted, replete with subtle touches of pathos.

Her past is suggested but not revealed until she marries the youthful army lieutenant, and his father—the commanding officer—discovers her history. But the boy loves her and refuses to give her up so he is dispatched to an isolated outpost on the edge of the jungle. Paul Lukas gives a perfectly natural and polished performance as the other man and aviator Kikkla, presents an understanding characterization of his role. As the German Baron and commanding officer, Warner Oland gives his usually good account of himself.

172, leading to statewide use of convalescent serum.

Only one case has been reported for the first week of the present month, and no epidemic conditions of the disease have been noted thus far. Dr. H. M. Guilford, state epidemiologist, said. General epidemic conditions usually manifest themselves by the end of July although local epidemics have arisen later in the year, he said.

State records show the height of the epidemic period of the disease in Wisconsin is reached between August and October, with September usually the month of greatest prevalence.

New York—The turtle races on shipboard have ocean passengers agog. On a recent cruise of the Beigenland, "Goofy," the swiftest of the turtles, won the hurdles in 3 hours 3 minutes. The races are conducted in a circle ten feet in diameter. The first turtle to reach the center line gets the laurel wreath.

Barrymore Is Star In Political Film

Plays Role of Senator in "The Washington Masquerade"

Lionel Barrymore is starred in the great political drama, "The Washington Masquerade" which plays at the Fox Theatre Friday and Saturday. On Saturday Mrs. Carl Kayser will instruct on contract bridge on the mezzanine floor from 1 to 4:30 p. m.

Barrymore, as a brilliant, dominating leader who rules men, but is in turn ruled by a woman who almost plunges him to ruin, is the unique figure in a unique story. In striking contrast to his portrayal in "Grand Hotel," is the role of the dominant Jeff Keane, Senator and national political power.

Lionel Barrymore probably never performed a greater role. In the play, known as "The Claw" on the stage, he made the role theatrical history in the screen adaptation, modernized and with authentic inside facts added by Samuel G. Blythe, the famous political writer, he has an amazing portrayal.

An elaborate cast surrounds Barrymore. Karen Morley, who played with him in "Arsene Lupin," scores as the agent of lobbyists—a woman of energy and duplicity. Nils Asther is noteworthy as the foreign lobbyist, whose love affair with Keane's wife finally precipitates the astounding denouement.

Time honored customs in Congress such as the hazing of recalcitrant newcomers, the Senate ceremony accompanying the induction of a new Senator-elect, and the hunt for the general public come vividly on the screen in "The Washington Masquerade." In addition inside details of the lobbyist's racket, showing how outside influences constantly seek to sway the opinions of lawmakers, how women and other bait are used to trap them.

White House etiquette is shown for the first time in this picture. Social rules are strict in the nation's capital and the staging of an actual reception of a Presidential Reception, the great formal dinner and other side-lights on official life at the capital.

For the benefit of patrons interested in learning correct Contract Bridge plays from a recognized authority, and in order to give Mrs. Kayser opportunity for more personal contact with her audience, the lessons in this popular game will be conducted on the mezzanine every Saturday at 5 and 9 p. m. An informal discussion will follow lecture, personally directed by Mrs. Kayser.

opening next Monday, for a run of 3 days at the Elite Theatre.

Charles Farrell, doing the finest work of his career opposite the dainty Titan-haired star—settings that are perfect copies of their British originals—an intensely human and vivid story—a notable supporting cast headed by Beryl Mercer and J. M. Kerrigan—and Henry King's splendid direction—these are additional reasons for the popularity of this unique screen offering.

"Merely Mary Ann" adapted from Israel Zangwill's play by Jules Furberman, is arousing much enthusiasm for its exceptional entertainment qualities.

Tim McCoy Featured In "Texas Cyclone"

When every bad man in Stampede snatched unmistakable signs of being scared to death of the very name of Tim Rawlins, Pecos Grant, a cowboy just riding through, decided to stay awhile and get at the bottom of the mystery as to why the law thought he was Rawlins. The picture promised a lot of exciting adventure, and that was what he lived in large doses.

It was the situation that starts the hot boiling in "Texas Cyclone," the Columbia picture starring Tim McCoy at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday. It is said to be McCoy's best and the picture certainly promises plenty of action and thrills. There's romance too. Shirley Grey playing the heroine. Others in the cast are John Wayne, Wheeler Oakman, Wallace MacDonald, Norman Dent, Harry Cordans and Walter Brice. It was directed by D. Ross. A first-class original story by W. C. A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

"Gap in the Curtain"

In "The Gap in the Curtain," John Buchanan considers the things that men might do if they could get a certain glimpse into the future.

By one of those bits of hocus-pocus permitted to novelists, he has five Englishmen shown a copy of a newspaper dated exactly one year ahead.

A financier learns that a certain great merger is to be announced on that date. A politician discovers that a supposedly unimportant statesman is to become prime minister then. A young aristocrat learns that he is to sail on an archaeological expedition to Yucatan on that day. And two other young men read their own death notices.

Mr. Buchanan then shows how these five react to the news.

The financier does his best to cash in on his knowledge—and succeeds in losing 20,000 pounds. The politician, striving to insure his own fortune, manages only to drive himself out of politics. The young aristocrat goes to Yucatan despite every effort to dodge it. One of the two forewarned of death gives way to panic—and dies.

on schedule. Only the fifth man is able to circumvent his fate, and he does it by accident rather than by design.

Mr. Buchanan's point is that it isn't enough to know what is going to happen, unless we also know how it is going to happen. A glimpse into the future, he concludes, is worse than useless unless it tells everything.

He makes of "The Gap in the Curtain" a thoroughly interesting book. Published by the Houghton-Mifflin Co., it sells for $2.50.

Jobless Given Work on City Improvements

Men on Relief List Employed on Project at Bathing Beach

(Special to Post-Crescent)

New London—An extensive improvement is being carried out at the bathing beach near St. John's place bridge. This work, a part of the program of city improvement, is being carried out by men who are otherwise unemployed and the work is supervised by Aldermen Kringle, Meading and Palmer of the city property committee.

Throughout the week men with the use of a team of horses have scooped out sand along the shallow edge of the north side of the bank and have been using this material as filling back of the bathhouse. The tangle of willows has been cut and burned and the cleaned space will be filled. Gravel will be hauled to cover the sand and by a rearrangement of the guard rail along the roadway a parking space for cars will be formed.

The entire beach has been cleaned, and a quantity of material which had become imbedded in the sand, removed. Men have also been at work this week clearing the bank, cutting willows and improving the camp site along the Wolf river on Highway 54.

The council has purchased a woodlot north of the city comprising 20 acres. This, it is estimated, will yield 1,000 cords of wood. Just how the details of this project will be worked out has not yet been decided. Some of the councilmen favored the idea of wood being cut on shares while others thought that the wood should be cut and the council allowed to apportion it. William Lipke, head of the poor committee, has been placed in charge of the project. Work will begin soon and continue through early winter.

State Highway 54 Project Expected To be Started Soon

Special to Post-Crescent

New London—Bids will be sought soon for the grading of the new location of Highway 54 between New London and Northport according to Mayor E. W. Wendlandt. According to the mayor, Division Engineer W. J. Hazelton of Wisconsin and County Highway Commissioner John Huffcut have interested themselves in this project.

The new location of the road would be directly north of the Green Bay and Western tracks and would connect with Highway 26 near the property owned by E. C. Jost on Shawano rd. It would form an almost straight road to connect with the present road at the top of the hill in the village of Northport. Only grading would be done this year, it is pointed out, but the work of laying a road through this long stretch of swampland would employ a large number of unemployed, and the men in charge state that local men will receive first consideration.

Chapter 16

"I LOVE MY MADNESS"

THERE were friends who would take her for a time, of course, Sondra thought, but one could not go on for ever sponging for hospitality; besides, when it was known that she hadn't any money, would anyone be anxious for her company? She knew they would not.

Flora said abruptly, "I wish to goodness you could marry John Anderson; can't you make him get rid of his wife?"

"I'm not aware that John has any overwhelming desire to marry me," Sondra said. "Besides... isn't it rather a contradiction, to advise me to put my head in the noose you're so anxious to escape? Do you think I should be any happier than you are, if I married for money?"

"But you like John, don't you?" Flora said amazed. "I always thought you were frightfully fond of him."

"Fond of him?" Sondra echoed. "I'm fond of lots of men, but I haven't the least desire to marry any of them."

Flora sighed. "Somehow I thought it was more than that—I thought you were in love with him," she said.

"In love with him—" Sondra raised her eyes and looked at her reflection in the mirror. "What made you think that?" she asked slowly.

"Oh, I don't know—but when you're together, you seem so suited. I've always felt that even if you marry anybody else, John will always be the one you should have married."

"I should think he would be tremendously flattered."

Flora came across to her sister. "What's the matter with us?" she said in a strangely shaken voice. "We've changed so—both of us. We used to be the greatest pals—we always told each other everything—everything we hoped for and dreamed about—and we're quite changed. What's the matter with us, Sondra?"

Sondra jerked her shoulder to free it of her sister's touch. "It's life I suppose," she said hardily. "And the way we've been brought up. It's no good being mushy about it—" but it angered her because she felt the tears in her eyes.

Flora turned away. "You're harder than I am," she said. "And perhaps you're lucky; you won't suffer so much. Don't ever get fond of anyone, Sondra—not really fond—it's not happiness—it's just suffering all the time."

"Are you so fond of Jocelyn?" Sondra asked.

"I'd die for him."

There was a tragic silence, then Flora went on—"But as far as he's concerned, I can die. He won't have me on any terms, poor darling!" She laughed a little. "It makes him angry because he's in love with me. He'd much rather have had a dull, ordinary love affair with some girl; he'd have enjoyed being properly engaged, and then getting married in the orthodox way at some fashionable church, and a month's honeymoon in Italy and all the rest of it..." She broke off, only to admit after a moment, "And I should have loved it too. You know, in spite of everything, I'm just an ordinary creature in my heart. Hopelessly middle-class I suppose. Since I married Ben, everything's been a big sham—all the ceremony, and ostentation. If only you knew how I loathe a maid to help me dress--"

"Flora?"

"Oh you can stare," Flora said defiantly. "It's the truth though I don't suppose anyone would believe me. I could have been perfectly happy in a little house—with Jocelyn. But it's life, isn't it—that we should always long for the things we can't have."

There was a profound silence, which Flora broke abruptly. "I didn't know John was back," she said.

"Yes, he came this evening."

"Have you seen him?"

"No."

"He was at the theater tonight—with a girl."

"Was he?"

"Yes, and that appalling Cassidy man."

"I like Cass; he amuses me."

"I hate him; he's a sponger—and I don't believe he's really a friend of John's—it just suits him to hang on to him."

"I don't believe John has ever given him a cent," Sondra said defensively.

"Not in cash perhaps," Flora agreed. "But there are other ways."

Sondra stifled a pretended yawn. "I'm tired; do you mind if I go to bed?"

"Very well; shall I see you in the morning?"

The two girls looked at one another.

"Because I'm going very early," Flora said.

The color faded from Sondra's face; until this moment she had not really believed in her sister's sincerity; she was so used to Flora's little scenes and had been almost sure that in the morning she would have forgotten all about her over-night resolutions, and would slip back into the old luxurious rut.

"You really mean to go?" she asked, shortly.

"Yes."

"You're mad," Sondra said. The elder girl laughed.

"If I am, I love my madness."

"You'll regret it all your life."

"I must risk that. You always have to take a risk in big things."

Sondra stood looking at her sister helplessly.

"You'll have changed your mind in the morning," she said with a confidence she was far from feeling.

Flora shook her head.

"I don't think so."

She went away then, and Sondra stood staring at the closed door. "What will become of me?" she was asking herself blankly.

Sondra almost laughed as she remembered that Flora had believed her to be in love with John! She had never loved anyone except Mark, and now, after only a month she was already asking herself if even that had really been love—the headlong passionate feeling she had felt for him and which had swept her off her feet so completely.

Mark believed that love never died; he had told her that he would love her in just the same way when she was old and he was old... She had thrilled to hear him say that, but was it the truth?

Perhaps some day there would be another woman in his life and he would long for his freedom.

Perhaps some day there would be another man in her life—a man who would mean more to her than Mark had ever meant...

How one's thoughts ran on!

Sondra found herself thinking how little she really knew about Mark. She had danced with him and dined with him, and lived with him for just twenty-four hours, but the man himself was a complete stranger to her. It was rather a frightening thought, and yet on the other hand how little he knew about her too! He thought she was sweet and good, and loyal; he saw her through the rose-colored glasses of love, those kindly glasses that never quite reflect the truth.

She was Mark's wife, but in her heart was a queer throbbing dread that she was going to lose John Anderson.

And just now—if Flora really went away in the morning, she would need him so badly.

Of course she could go out to Mark if the worst came to the worst... that seemed a terrible way to put it.

Surely if the best came to the best, should have been the right way in which to think of a future when they would be together again.

But John had said that life where Mark had gone was "damnable."

Nausea, filth, loneliness, flamed food, fever and an ever increasing longing for home—she remembered his words so faithfully.

They painted an unflattering picture.

She crept into bed and lay awake for a long time staring into the darkness, trying to comfort herself with the belief that in the morning Flora would laugh at her over-night emotion, and that life would go on in the same comfortable rut.

Flora could not possibly uproot them all so calmly—it was her duty to consider the man she had married, if she had not thought for anyone else.

Kimberly Ready To Humble Kaws

Record Crowd Expected When Leaders Invade Village Sunday

Kimberly — R. Kimberly and Kaukauna are on the bottom of the loop it would make no difference as far as the fans from the two cities are concerned. For when Kimberly clashes with Kaukauna everybody who can scrape up enough money is coming in to see the Kaukauna-Kimberly race. The fans will be packed in the park and a pair of lungs that would make a pig rather take a back seat. Kaukauna is booked for Kimberly Sunday and Manager Joe Muench of the Papermakers is bound to break the limit that has lost the last four Papermakers games.

The Kimberly squad after having a general get-together party Thursday night will be cut Sunday with more life than it has shown in recent games. The lineup Sunday will be practically the same with Lefty Behr or Zenefski starting the game and Ashman catching.

Mary's Lamers will have his regular all day duty. He realizes that the Papermakers are no set up and with a chance to cop the pennant the Kaukauna aggregation is taking no chances. Lefty Fortin will start the tussle and should things get too tough Clarence Popen, a former Papermaker, will see if he can control his former team-mate. With Popen in the lineup the Kaukauna fans are backing him with plenty of encouragement on his old stamping grounds.

San Francisco — Fidel LaBarba, Los Angeles, won by technical knockout over Al Citrino, San Francisco (6).

Pond All Stars Battle Manitowoc Sunday Morning

The Pond All Stars will play the Hilltopps of Manitowoc at 10 o'clock Sunday morning at Brandt park. It was announced today. The two teams met at Manitowoc last week and drew a large crowd. Appleton won 8 and 4 and the folks around the lake shore city think the Stars are one of the finest aggregations ever.

Emmett Mortell has been picked by Manager Eddie Starnard to again turn back the Hilltopps. The invading team is the pick of softball talent at Manitowoc and aims to bump the Stars this week. The game is another of the "warm-up" games the Stars have been playing to key them for state tournament play next month at Madison.

Collegians Play At Shawano; Kaws Invade Kimberly

Wisconsin Rapids Given Chance to Bump Green Bay From Top

VALLEY LEAGUE	W.	L.	Pct.
Green Bay	11	5	.688
Kaukauna	9	5	.643
Wisconsin Rapids	10	6	.625
Kimberly	7	8	.467
Appleton	5	10	.333
Shawano	4	12	.250

SUNDAY'S GAMES

Green Bay at Wisconsin Rapids. Appleton at Shawano. Kaukauna at Kimberly.

ALTHOUGH three good games are on tap in the Fox River Valley league this Sunday, the standout battle of the weekend will be at Wisconsin Rapids where the up and coming third place Rapids team will meet the leading Green Bay squad. Wisconsin Rapids has been able to slap the Sox around with greater ease than any of the other teams in the circuit as Rosenberg's players have taken but one out of three games from the Redmeats.

Lefty Peteka, ace of the Bay mound staff, will shoot his slants at the third place team in an effort to even the season's series at two each. Morgan will catch. Either Blot or Eastling will toe the mound for Wisconsin Rapids with McLean on the receiving end.

Kaws at Kimberly is set to make life miserable for the second place Kaukauna team on the Kimberly diamond. Any Kaukauna-Kimberly game is sure to be a fight and spectators are assured of a great contest. Two left handers will work the game from the rubber as Behr is the probable choice for Kimberly and Fortin for the Kaws. Kimberly will have Zenefski in reserve. Ashman will catch for Kimberly and Wenzel will handle Fortin.

The Shawano Indians will play host to the Appleton Collegians and the fun is sure to fly because the Indians still have hopes of getting out of the cellar before the end of the season. A Shawano victory would mean that the Kramens would still be in a position to get away from the lowest rung in the ladder before the end of the season and it is reported that the Indians are on the warpath. Evans and Murphy will work for Appleton while either Rubie or Buche will toil for Shawano. Handy is slated to catch.

Eau Claire Polo 4 Plays DePere Team Tomorrow

Northern Squad Recently Walloped Minneapolis 12 and 3

DE PERE—The crack polo team of the Bit and Spur club, Eau Claire, will meet the De Pere Polo club here Sunday.

The Eau Claire riders have attracted something of a sensation on the other side of the state, and are rated strong opponents for any polo four. Recently they rode to a hard victory over the Twin Cities polo team of Minneapolis, 12 to 3, and on Sept. 1 will meet Fort Snelling in tournament play.

Minneapolis newspapers were loud in their praise of the Eau Claire team, following its appearance in the former city.

"The polo team from Eau Claire, is a powerhouse on offense, brilliant in team play and tricky on defense," one article stated. "The Wisconsin-ites were the first of invading forces to draw blood on local turf and they drew it in buckets."

"Such hard riding, finesse in stroking, playing the ball to a setup and ability to be in the right spot at the right time have not been seen this season. The boys who represent the Eau Claire Polo club are a well-conditioned, fast and handy ponies, gallopers who could take it and give it every second of a chucker."

"The Eau Claire's proved themselves real sportsmen. Every member of the team has a stout heart; they give it and take it and call it even."

The admission for Sunday's game is 50c plus the tax, free parking included. Special rates for reserved parking on the south side of the field.

Edward Winston Churchill Spencer of Milwaukee will cover the game play by play over a public speaking system. Mr. Spencer was at the Army game and helped to give fans a better understanding of polo. Captain Ferguson of Milwaukee will referee the game.

Los Angeles — Japan stood on the brink of the first Olympic team to the marino stadium at Long Beach while the aggregate crowds at the swimming championships figured to reach 80,000 today.

Rowing, including an estimate for today's finals, attracted 100,000 to the marino stadium at Long Beach while the aggregate crowds at the swimming championships figured to reach 80,000 today.

Almost from the start there has been no doubt about the all-around supremacy of the United States. The point tables, figured unofficially, show the Americans with an overwhelming lead. The United States scored its biggest Olympic conquest in track and field sports since the war captured the free style wrestling championship, clinched the majority of honors in women's swimming and hoped to retain the main laurels of the Olympic regatta this afternoon.

The closing sensation, however, was the rush of the great Japanese men's swimming team to detrone the Americans in this branch of major competition.

Japan's improved showing all along the Olympic lines has been a conspicuous feature from the start. The Japanese have high hopes of landing the 1940 Olympics for Tokyo. The 1936 games will be in Berlin.

Closing ceremonies starting at 2 o'clock tomorrow will follow the equestrian eventless finals. National and Olympic banners will be paraded and final awards made to the athletes.

Appleton Lutherans Battle Menasha Club

The Appleton lineup will show Benny Rafoth first base, Dalke at second, E. Horn right, short, Hank Stodd left, short, Frankie Bass third, Bro Eggert on the mound and Ben Renfeldt behind the plate. In the Menasha lineup Ken Krueger will be pitcher, Casey Rotelsch on base and Johnny Stodd will be left field.

Indianapolis Can Usurp Lead In Association

CHICAGO — The Indianapolis Indians today were in a dandy position to make a move toward the leadership of the American association, and they probably won't have a better one this season.

Minneapolis' somewhat shaky Millers were at the Heller metropolis to open a four game series and the space between them was only two and one-half games. Columbus, which nearly blanked the Millers off their high post, ran into one of those times yesterday and today were on third place, but only one point behind Indianapolis.

What happened to the Red Birds yesterday was a double looking at Kansas City, while Minneapolis last night squeaked out a 3 to 2 decision over Louisville, to strengthen its position. Indianapolis is fabled a chance to increase its lead over Columbus by taking to St. Paul, 2 to 1. Toted a record, set up above the 500 mark by trimming Milwaukee, 4 to 2, in ten innings.

Blues Win 2 Games

The Blues resorted to slam bang hitting to trip Columbus, 5 to 3 in the first game, and in the second game, put together eight hits, six walks and six Columbus errors for a 9 to 8 decision. Kansas City connected for 19 hits in the opener, smacking Phil Wenzel, Paul Dean, Bob Osborne and Al Gencowski, with fine impartiality. A seven run rally in the eighth, tying the score, was the feature of the Blue assault in the second contest.

Indianapolis' defeat by St. Paul was a hard one to take. The Blues had a four hit, but they were clustered just enough to win in the first and third innings. Les Munns gave the Indians a light hit, but was extremely effective.

At Louisville, Dutch Henry and Jess Pettit combined to outpitch Bob Johnson for a Minneapolis victory. The Miller pair were nailed for nine hits, but the Blues launched most of their own in the seventh and eighth for the winning runs.

There was a bit more action in the game for Toledo. With Mike Fawcett on in the tenth, Jack Ward doubled and sent in the two-run sorcery. The victory was then a foregone conclusion. The Blues' out of line in the series. The Blues' out of line in the series. The Blues' out of line in the series.

Dollar Is Worth 24 Cents More Now Than 3 Years Ago

Babson Points Out Living Costs are Down 20.3 Per Cent

BY ROGER W. BABSON
Babson Park—The United States Department of Labor reports that the cost of living has fallen 20.3 per cent since 1929. That means that $1 which was worth 100 cents for meeting living expenses in 1929, is now worth $1.24. At the same time the average wage rates have declined only 15.5 per cent. This means those who are steadily employed are actually getting, on the average, a higher wage in buying power than they did in the boom times of 1929 in spite of the wage reductions. The trouble is that so few are steadily employed and so many wholly unemployed. While wage rates have declined only 15.5 per cent, total payrolls have declined 40.5 per cent, showing that unemployment, not wage reductions, is to blame for low purchasing power.

Much Balance
As wage rates are fully brought into balance with the decline in other prices, production will begin to improve, employment will increase and total payrolls will gain. Labor costs to the employer depend on the wage rate, but the total income of the wage workers depends more on the amount of work than on the rate. With prices of everything else down, business can fully resume only as wages are brought into balance. Hence we should look upon the fact that second wage cuts were twice as numerous in July as in June as a factor making for recovery of employment and business. It is far better for workers to accept a 20 per cent reduction from 1929, in line with the cost of living, and to have their employment increase, than to resist the necessary reductions and hold back recovery both in employment and in business.

Some items in the living costs are still out of line with the general drop and these will undergo further readjustment. Rent, for example, has decreased only 16.9 per cent in the past three years whereas food has declined 33.3 per cent. Miscellaneous items, such as doctors' and dentists' services, education, and incidentals have decreased only 2.5 per cent, whereas the cost of clothing has been reduced 20.8 per cent. Fuel and light have declined 10 per cent, whereas house-furnishing costs have decreased 22 per cent. The items that have lagged behind the general decline, however, are now being brought more rapidly into adjustment. The decline in rents, for example, has been speeded up substantially during the past few months. In determining the figure of 20.3 per cent as the drop in living costs, proper weight has been given to the proportion of expenses which each item occupies in the total budget. Hence, it is a good average figure for the country as a whole.

Variation in Costs
Both wage scales and cost of living vary greatly in different localities. In the South living costs and wages are normally lower than in the North. The following table of per cent decreases by cities shows the amount of decline since 1929, and the purchasing power of the dollar now compared with three years ago.

City	Per cent Living Cost Decline Since 1929	Purchasing Power of the Dollar in 1929
Boston	19.8	$1.24
Buffalo	19.1	1.23
Chicago	22.8	1.23
Detroit	17.5	1.36
New York	17.1	1.21
San Francisco	18.8	1.23
Philadelphia	19.9	1.24
Portland, Maine	16.9	1.20
Atlanta	22.1	1.28
Cincinnati	19.8	1.22
Memphis	20.5	1.23
Minneapolis	17.6	1.21
Richmond	18.3	1.22

Although allowances must be made for the variations both in living costs and wages between the different sections of the country, for the nation as a whole the cost of living is back to where it was in 1916, whereas wage scales have not declined below the 1925 level. For wage scales to get back to their 1925 level would require a total reduction of 25 per cent from the 1929 level. Up to time there was an average decline of 15.5 per cent. Furthermore, some wage scales were advanced far out of proportion to the majority and in such cases to balance the drop in cost of living, wage scales would have to undergo an adjustment of more than 25 per cent from the level of three years ago.

I am a firm believer in the doctrine of high purchasing power for the mass of the people. Employers must not take advantage of labor's distress to reduce wage rates more than is necessary to allow business to operate at a reasonable profit. Business can prosper only as employees prosper. I sympathize with the efforts of labor to gain a larger division of the profits of industry. I do say, however, that the first thing is to adjust wage rates in order that there may be some profits to divide. Later, as business improves and prices rise, wages will automatically increase through the law of supply and demand. In the meantime let everyone remember that only through mutual cooperation and sacrifice can employment and prosperity fully return.

Business is estimated by the Babsonchart is now 28 per cent below a year ago.

Kaws to Meet Kimberly in Game Sunday

Pocan. Formerly With Papermakers, Anxious to Defeat Old Teammates

Kaukauna—Kimberly's Papermakers will play host to the Electric city baseball nine at the Kimberly park Sunday in a valley league fracas that should prove very entertaining. Kimberly's nine has been juggled all season because of financial reasons and in one of the flips, Clarence Pocan, its best hurling bet, was left out. Pocan was immediately taken in to the Kaw fold by Manager Marty Lamers, and since then he has been starring around the short-stop position.

Last Sunday Pocan was responsible for the Kaw's victory over Shawano when he blasted out a homerun to score Les Smith ahead of him in the ninth inning, tying the score. His brilliant fielding around the short position has also attracted the attention of fans. Nothing would please Pocan any more than assisting in the defeat of the Papermakers Sunday.

Kimberly and Kaukauna have always maintained a spirit of rivalry and the result was huge attendance at all games in which they met. Sunday's game should be no exception as the Kaws need a victory to keep in the valley league race. Being just one half game out of first place the Kaws, can not suffer a defeat if they wish to repeat their pennant winning performance of 1931.

Kaukauna should be in fine shape for Sunday's game as they had quite a workout with the Milwaukee Red Sox here Thursday afternoon. Former manager, Eddie Stump, who is now with the Red Sox, had plenty to say about the Kaws before he left Thursday.

Starting Sunday's game will be Portia and Wenzel as the battery. Although their first season together these two seem to get along well together. Fans offer the reasons of their similarity in size. In the infield, Collins will cavort about first; Lamers at second. Pocan at short, and Phillips at third. Les Smith, Joey Vils, and Mush Eider will man the outfield. Fandrack will be used as utility man, in either shortstop or right field positions.
